Entire classrooms precast in concrete make up the new addition to the Homewood Elementary School, Pittsburgh, Pa. The design brings beauty, extra utility and easy upkeep to what is usually a "temporary" type of construction. Moreover, a degree of portability is achieved which allows future transportation to another site at very nominal cost.

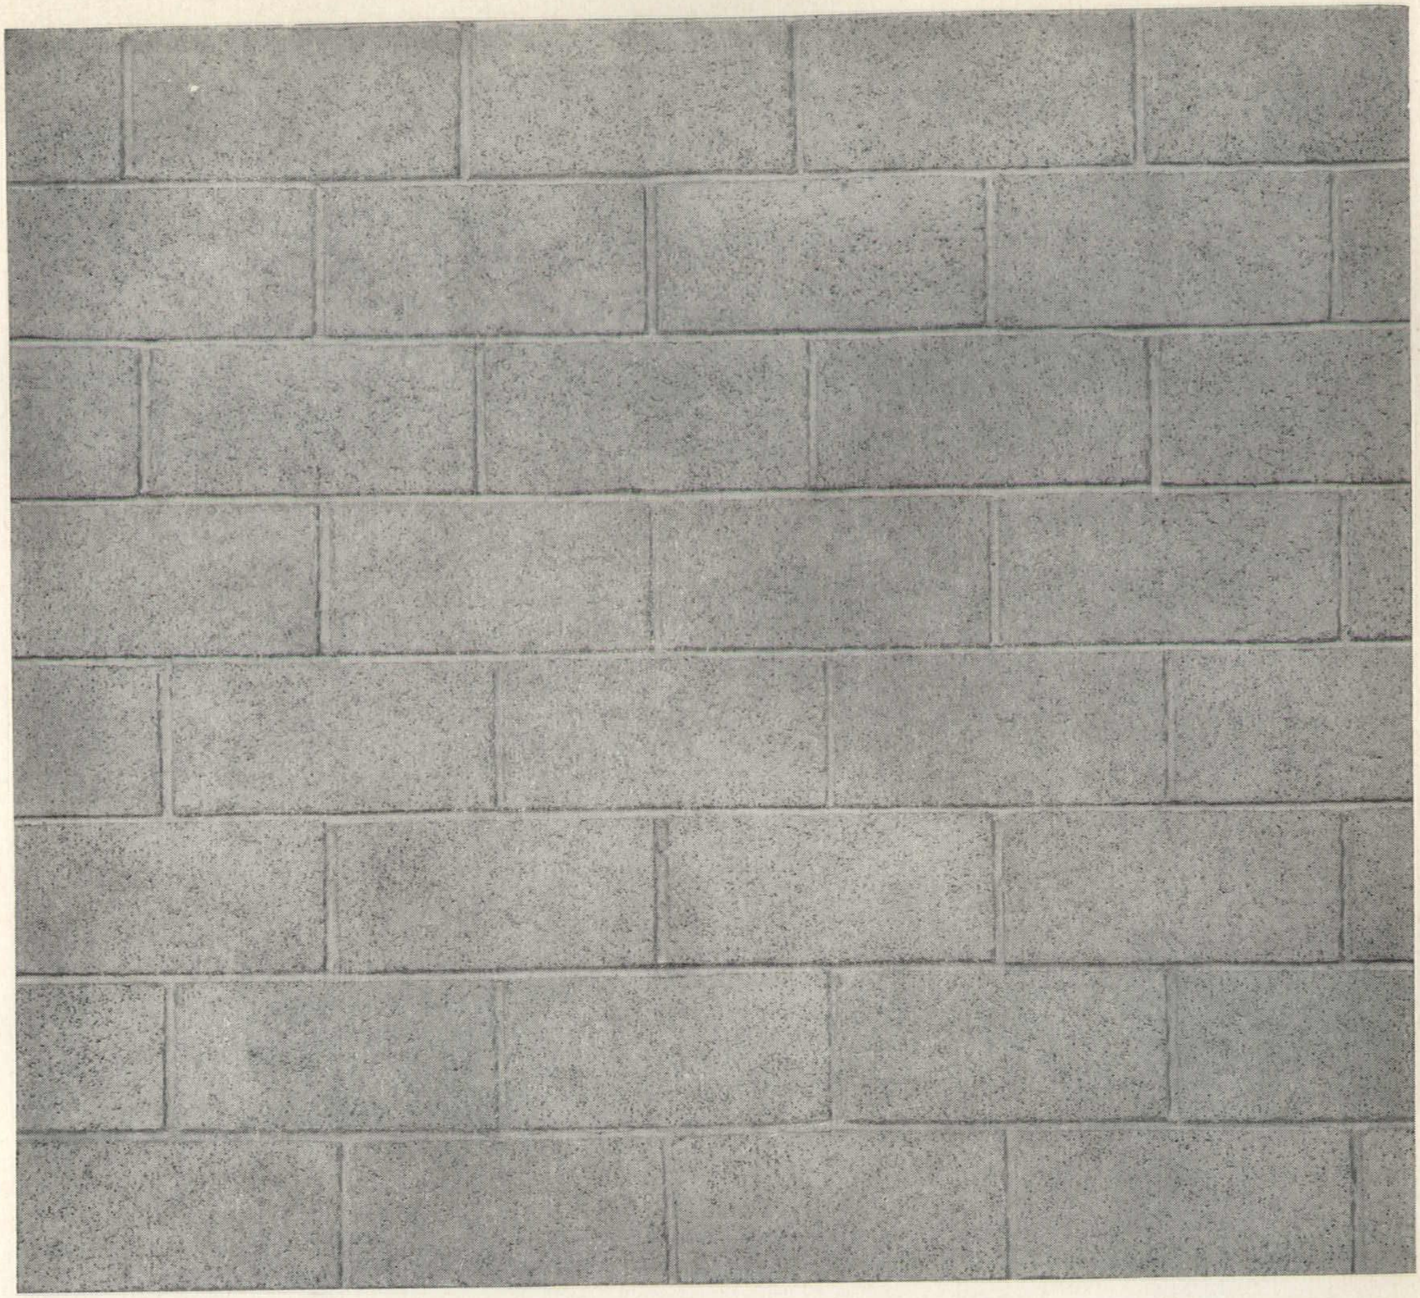

The concrete segments—each 8′ wide by 28′ long—include a roof or floor section combined with half of each side wall. The precast units were designed for mass production and contain all the essentials of classroom planning. Air ducts, concealed conduits and pipe chases provide a finished room without unsightly exposed utilities.

Oriented to enclosed, planted playgrounds, the structure is completed by a street facade of integrally cast exposed aggregate panels that enhance aesthetic values . . . keep out dust and noise . . . discourage vandalism.

PORTLAND CEMENT ASSOCIATION

A national organization to improve and extend the uses of concrete

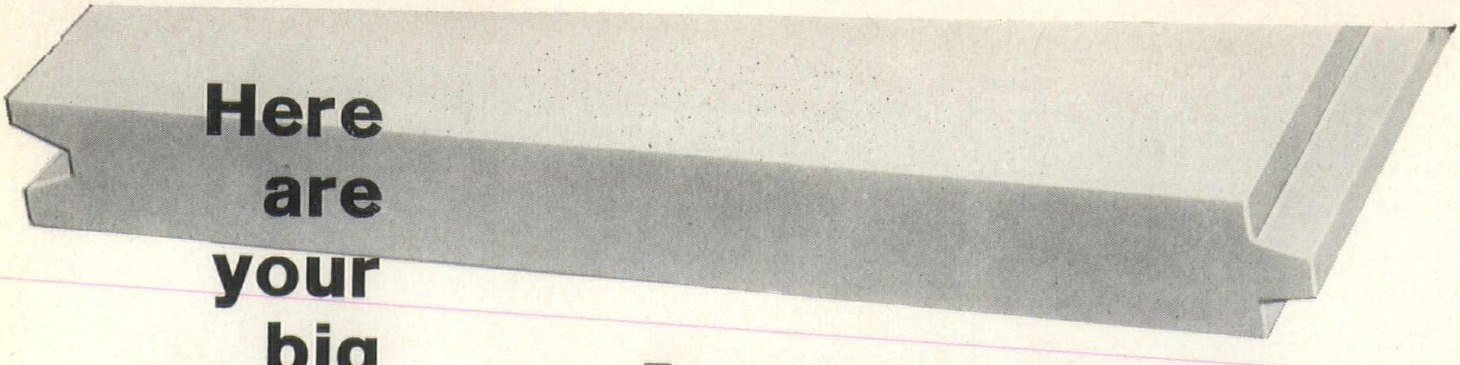

Count the concrete blocks in this wall.
Multiply by 12 pounds.

That's how much weight was saved with USS GARYLITE expanded slag aggregate.

Each standard 8″ x 8″ x 16″ concrete building block made with USS GARYLITE aggregate is about 12 pounds lighter than the same size block made with natural aggregates. Compared with USS GARYLITE slag, natural aggregates weigh up to 50% more per cubic yard. And because concrete made with GARYLITE weighs less, structural steel framework and other supporting members can often be lighter and more economical. Lightweight blocks cost less to transport, are easier to handle, and go up faster.

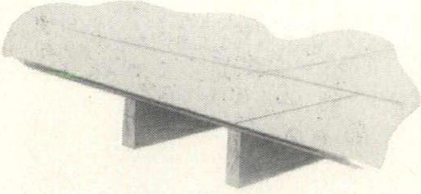

Besides cutting weight, USS GARYLITE slag aggregate provides excellent fire-resistance in concrete (actually more than other aggregates tested), long-lasting beauty (different sizes of GARYLITE provide a variety of textures), and proven durability (wetting, drying, and freezing have little or no effect). Next time you need lightweight concrete, check into the advantages of specifying USS GARYLITE expanded slag as the aggregate. For more information write United States Steel, Slag Products Section, Room 6754, 208 South LaSalle St., Chicago 90, Ill. (Area Code 312-236-9200) USS and GARYLITE are trademarks.

Here are your big 4-way savings...with homasote

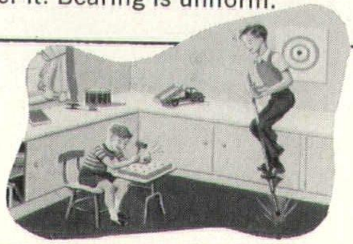

4 FOR 1 FLOOR DECKING

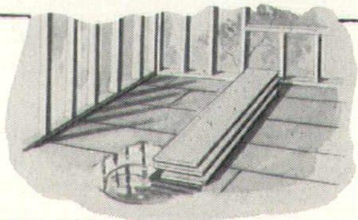

1. IT'S SUB-FLOORING
This $1\frac{11}{32}$'' thick, wood-fibre Homasote Decking is nailed directly to floor joists in 2'x8' panels. Partitions can be set right over it. Bearing is uniform.

2. IT'S UNDERLAYMENT
No costly room-by-room, additional fitting and nailing. Underlayment is already in place for carpeting, composition flooring and resilient or ceramic tile installation.

3. IT'S SOUND DEADENING
Impact and air-borne noise transmission is materially reduced. Rooms are noticeably quieter—an especial advantage for garden apartments and motel construction.

4. IT'S WEATHERPROOF
Homasote's greater density offers constant resistance to moisture, dampness and air infiltration, particularly over crawl space. Termite, rot and fungus protected.

All 4 for only 1 application cost!

Lightweight Construction with Haydite

Apollo Savings & Loan Association
430 N. Michigan Ave.
Chicago, Illinois
Architect: Fred H. Prather
General Contractor: Turner Construction Co.
Concrete Supplier: Vulcan Consumers
Masonry Contractor: Crouch-Walker Co.

WESTERN HAYDITE, an expanded shale lightweight concrete aggregate is being used with excellent results in lightweight concrete floors, structural frames, and prestressed products. It is manufactured by the Western Brick Company, a division of Illinois Brick Company.

WESTERN HAYDITE was used throughout the Apollo Savings and Loan Association building for the lightweight concrete-cellular steel structural floor system, as well as for fire protection of columns and beams. A six bag per cu. yd. mix of structural grade WESTERN HAYDITE and sand produced strengths in excess of 3750 psi with a weight of 108 lbs. per cu. ft. The combined use of WESTERN HAYDITE lightweight concrete, Illinois Brick Company's Autoclaved Waylite Block and A-440 steel makes this a truly modern building.

The Apollo Savings and Loan Association building is designed so an additional eight floors may be added in the future. It is air conditioned throughout and utilizes a new steel, designated A-440, which allows columns to be smaller in cross-section providing additional useable space.

Technical information and sample specifications pertaining to the use of WESTERN HAYDITE lightweight aggregate and Illinois Brick Company's Autoclaved Waylite Block may be obtained by calling:

President Carroll To Visit Indiana

Mr. J. Roy Carroll, Jr., FAIA, newly-elected President of The American Institute of Architects, has accepted an invitation to attend the 1963 Annual Convention of the Indiana Society of Architects. The convention will be held October 18, 19 and 20th at French Lick, Indiana.

The invitation to President Carroll was extended in behalf of the Society by ISA President Walter Scholer of Lafayette. President Carroll will be the featured speaker at the Saturday evening banquet, and his appearance here marks the first time in several years that an AIA president has made an official visit to Indiana.

The convention will be held in conjunction with the East Central Region's first Triennial Convention. Better plan to attend!!

The trend today . . . more electricity from I&M for less cost!

Now I&M reduces the cost of electric heating for commercial, industrial and institutional customers!

On May 23, 1963, the cost of commercial, industrial and institutional electric space heating for I&M customers went down. Offices, stores, restaurants, industrial plants, churches and other institutions are now enjoying an average reduction of about 20 percent on the cost of their electric heating.

The new rate requires that customers must use electricity for all space heating.

Yes, the trend today is more electricity for less cost. For, unlike the cost of other fuels, the cost of electricity from I&M has never gone up . . . only down. That's because of our constant effort to improve our overall operating efficiency . . . leading to savings which are always passed on. So, even at a time when the cost of living continues to rise, the cost of electricity from I&M is steadily decreasing.

Learn how your clients can save with electric space heating. Call or write us today for the facts. An I&M Commercial and Industrial Representative will be happy to call on you.
